

Things Great Leaders always Do (But mere Managers always Fear)

Connects daily work with great goals

Thinks of people as people

Wants to earn respect

Is thrilled when team members achieve great things

Empowers people with honesty and transparency

Cares mainly about results

Understands that he is responsible if the team falls short

Focuses only on the short term

Sees only titles or organisational charts

Wants to be liked

Is threatened

Parcels out information as if it costs him personally

Is more concerned with process

Blames the team
